Madam C.J. Walker December 23, 1867 - May 25, 1919

Madam C.J. Walker made her fortune selling hair care products and became the first African American female millionaire.

- In the early 1900s, Madam Walker started to lose her hair and searched for a product to help it grow. When she couldn't find any hair product for this purpose she invented her own at home!
- Not only was Madam Walker great at selling direct to her customers, she also created a business of saleswomen who went door to door selling the products.
- After becoming a millionaire, Madam Walker gave money back to her community and helped other women go to college.

Mary McLeod Bethune

July 10, 1875 - May 18, 1955

Mary McLeod Bethune was an early 1900s teacher who opened a school for Black girls and started a Civil Rights organization.

- The only one in her family to attend school, Mary developed a love for learning and became a teacher.
- With only $1.50 and five students, Mary started the Daytona Literary and Industrial Training School for Negro Girls.
- Mary's school grew into one of the few colleges that African Americans could attend in the U.S. It is now known as Bethune-Cookman College.
- Mary was such a great community leader that three U.S. presidents asked her to help them make decisions.
- One of Mary's greatest achievements was creating a group, the National Council of Negro Women that helped promote equal rights for African Americans.
